PETER SAYS "The next few years are crucial for the Labour Party. We need to re-discover the hunger to win at local and national level and need to remember why we need to win.

We need to win so that we can get Labour governments at every level who can tackle the real problems our people face – the need for decent housing to buy or rent, proper funding for the NHS, an economic strategy that will work to create the jobs and security we need.

Our biggest asset is our membership – volunteers giving up their time and energy to see Labour succeed. We have seen a massive increase in membership this year and the NEC has a major task to ensure these new members are welcomed into the party, and their skills and abilities integrated into our campaign for change.

That means more support and training for branch officers to ensure our branches are welcoming and friendly and that our branches are active in campaigning in their communities.

This year will be vital for our Party and the Country as we face elections in Scotland, Wales, London and local councils in England and a referendum on Europe. We need an NEC which will ensure all our Party keeps its eyes focussed on the prize – a Labour victory in 2020!
